The Battle Cry of Peace.

The Battle Cry of Peace, at the Davis all this week with matines each day, J. Stuart Blacitton's tremendous photoplay depicting the horrors of war as it would be waged by an unscrupulous foe against us in our present defenseless condition, is remarkable not only for the fact that it was inspired by Defenseless America, the famous book by the no less famous inventor, Hudson Maxim, who personally appears in the picture, but for the fact that it has been the cause of more editorial comment than any photoplay ever produced. All the principles in the great picture are dramatic stars of the first magnitude. Charles Richman, who plays the leading role in the dearest of the first magnitude. In addition to the unusual aggreration of stars appearing in the pic-ture it is a noteworthy fact that Ma-jor General Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the United States army, appears in the picture as a guarantee of his whole hearted approval of the plea for preparedness against war, which is the theme of its tremendous Mysteries of Myra an Added Attraction.

The strongest all round picture show that has been run in this city for any two days this season is what the management of the Auditorium is boasting of for today and tomorrow. The bill is composed of three distinct features, first Pauline Frederick in the Phramount feature, The Spider, second the first episode of The Mysteries of Myra, from the story now running in the Boaton and New York Sunday Americans, and third that inimitable special comedy reel featuring Alexander the Great and Sally, His Mate those two wonderful monkies.

The Spider, an extraordinary Paramount picture produced by the Famous Players Film company, gives Pauline Frederick an unusual opportunity for the display of her amazing talents, as the subject presents her in two diversely opposite roles, Valerie St. Cyr, a notorious Parisian beauty, and her deserted daughter, Joan. In the impersonation of these dual but distinct characters, the superb emolional artiste performs miracles of character interpretation and of dramatic portrayal. The tremendous power of Miss Frederick's art and the wide range of her screen capabilities warn never so forcefully illustrated as warn never so for

"I love the bords so much," said Mime. Marcella in a recent interview. "and I have been friends with them ever since I was a child in the Harts Mountains, Germany. I was brought up in the midst of pigeons and household birds, and it was not long before I had pets among the forest birds as well. My secret in training them is to be kind and patient and never to use a stick if I can help it.

"I feed my birds twice a day. They love fruit and wine, and I have to give them once in a while a little whiskey and water, to protect them from the cold, which is much sharper here than in their native climate. They are not the least afraid of the band at the circus, and the bright lights at night make them think of the glaring sun, to which they are accustomed. The birds are happier when out on the circus stages than at ony other time."

DEVELOPMENT OF METAL PRODUCTION IN SERBIA

Austro-Hungary Making Plans to Benefit by Its Resources.

Belgrade, Serbia, June 8.—If Serbia remains under Austro-Hungarian control after the establishment of peace the Balkan state probably will take a prominent position among the world's metal-producing countries, as the present conquerors of Serbia are laying plans to develop the mineral resources. In antiquity the country was the largest gold-producer in Europe. Its copper mines had, prior to the conquest of the Balkans by the Turks, developed to a considerable extent, those exploited by a French company at Bor netting annually as much as 80 ped cent of the capital invested.

Gold has been won in Serbia in recent years principally through placer mining. The production was small. Dought and Paid For. Special music and effects arranged by an expert is played during the production by an enlarged orchestra.
